THESE STORIES AND MORE...

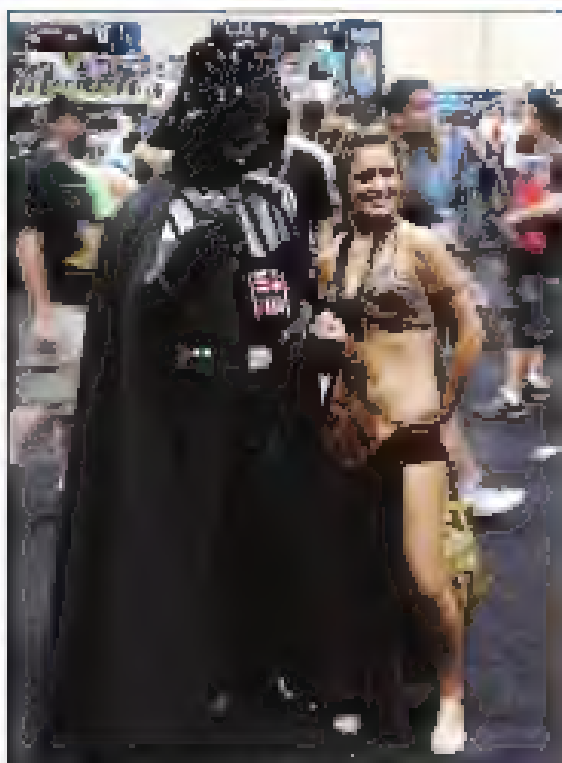

Most of the stories and photos in each issue of "Orlando Attractions Magazine" are just one of many you can find on our website. Stay up-to-date with all the latest news from Orlando online and through our free weekly e-mail newsletter. Sign-up at attractionsmagazine.com/newsletter-signup.

THE CAPTAIN IS BACK

Michael Jackson's Captain EO made its return to Epcot on July 1. The 3D film originally played at the park from 1986-1994. It's now playing once again in the same theater with some new effects. Visit our website for photos and video of the rediscovered thrills, excited fans and new merchandise. You'll also hear from Inuggers Debbie Peterson and Joe Tankersley about bringing Captain EO back to Epcot.

FULL STAR WARS COVERAGE

Star Wars Celebration V, an official fan gathering, took over the West Hall of the Orange County Convention Center for four days. Check our website for a huge photo gallery of the mad props, merchandise and to see fans in some great costumes. We also have 10 different videos ranging from "Meet the Slave Ladies" to the full 45-minute Indiana Jones/Star Wars crossover held in the Indiana Jones theater at Hollywood Studios. And don't miss the special Dance Off with the Star Wars Stars show and the Star Wars Themed fireworks.

STAR-STUDED OPENING

You won't want to miss seeing all the special events Universal hosted for three days during the grand opening of The Wizarding World of Harry Potter. You'll see videos and photos of the Harry Potter movie stars starting the fireworks show above Hogwarts Castle, a Q&A with the stars, directors and theme park designers, and the official grand opening with fun thoughts from guests.

TOO BIG TO RIDE FORBIDDEN JOURNEY?

I can't tell you how disappointed we were that my husband and I could not ride the Harry Potter and the Forbidden Journey ride due to our size. Universal has seats on all of their other rides to fit "larger" riders - why not on this one? It was exciting to see the books come to life, but very poorly planned as the seats/ slides are so small that it was difficult to view the merchandise or purchase anything. The lines were so long for some shops that we didn't even try to see them.

Harold Dacard
Coral Springs, Fla.

The stores are a bit small, but the whole area was made to be as authentic as possible. This also means making the stores small and getting in regular doses. For me, I'd rather put up with the small stores than to lose the immersive feeling.

But you're right about the Forbidden Journey seats not fitting all sizes. We've written about this issue on our website. You can go there to read more about it and see many comments our online readers have posted. You'll also read about Banks Lee. Banks made it his goal to lose enough weight to ride and he accomplished that goal over the summer.

UNIVERSAL FIRST-TIMER

I will be going for the first time to Universal for a day in January. This is the first time I will be leaving Disney grounds. Do they have a Fastpass system? Is it free? Where can I get cheaper or tickets?

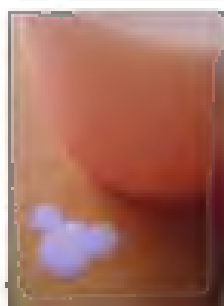

Patricia Fedoruk
Midvale, Ontario

Universal offers a "skip the line" pass called Express Pass. It's not free, but it allows you to skip the line on almost all attractions. As for cheaper tickets, our story on ticket sales in this issue. You'll have a blast at Universal.

DON'T CRY OVER SPILLED HIDDEN MICEYS

Lapilled milk one morning and upon returning with a napkin to clean it up, this is what I found. It completely startled me because I had just begun working at Disney. Would a couple months before

Traci M. Dene

THEN ...

... AND NOW

Disney's Animal Kingdom opened on Earth Day in 1998. Eight years later, the Himalayan mountains grew from nothing. Fans were excited to see the new Expedition Everest roller coaster ride before their eyes. Above Discovery River, it stands just over 300 feet tall, making it the largest "mountain" in Florida. The mountain is crafted with more than 5,000 pre-fabricated "logs" created from 25,000 individual computer-modeled pieces of wood.

That's a good one Traci. I'm sure it's not the last Mickey you'll see. Check out Skipper Bear's Top 10 Hidden Mickey's in this issue.

THE OFFICE, THE RIDER

I recently designed a theme park attraction and wanted to get your critique as well as let your readers see it. The link can be found here: timberline/warriorgirls

Josh Meyer
Parsons City, Pa.

As a fan of "The Office" I love the idea of making it into a dark ride at Universal Studios. Readers, check out Josh's idea. He has the whole thing planned out from start to finish.

LONG DISTANCE PAUL HOPPING

I am traveling to Orlando and was wondering what the best way to travel between Disney, Universal and SeaWorld is. I stay at Disney and have used their Magical Express before but was going to go to Universal for a couple of days this time and didn't know if it is better to rent a car, hire a taxi, use public transportation or some other way to travel back and forth.

Daryl Whalw
Pine Village, Ind.

Unfortunately there's no easy, cheap answer unless you have your own car. A taxi can get pretty expensive at around $2 per mile. Public bus transportation is cheap, but you'll need to transfer a couple of times. Your best bet is probably to rent a car. Readers, how do you get around Orlando?

your vacation home is exactly what it should be

We asked our Facebook followers, "What's your favorite theme park special event in the Orlando area?"

Barb Ott: I love Mickey's Not So Scary Halloween Party! My friends and I go every year. We dress up and go trick or treating throughout the Magic Kingdom! It doesn't get any better than that!

Peter van Dam: For me Halloween Horror Nights at Universal. Because we don't have that in The Netherlands.

Teresa Margaret Bethell: There are too many to pick from! I love being at Epcot during the Flower and Garden Festival to see all of the wonderful displays. Mickey's Very Merry Christmas Party is great because of all the wonderful decorations, especially the castle lights! I have never been to Halloween Horror Nights, but I suspect it will be one of my favorites. I am finally going to make it this October! Haunted Houses and an amusement park in one, what could be better?

Michael Jaworski: Halloween Horror Nights is really the most special theme park event because it offers a complete collection of new attractions that could exist without the host theme park.

Robert Angell Jr.: Hands down the Food and Wine Festival. Nothing beats it! You have great food, great beverages and great music. Need I say more?

Bonnie Lee: For me it's Mickey's Very Merry Christmas Party. Christmas has always been my favorite time of year, and Disney throws the best Christmas parties! From the parade to the fireworks, the fire hot shows, to the incredible lights, everything about that party warms my heart. I mean, where else can you see snow falling in Central Florida?

Giles Walker: I don't see any actual events as my favorite. If the park openings best, I makes it such a benefit to us that live here in Central Florida that we can get in there and see what is new before the crowds realize it is open.

Justin Manix: Halloween Horror Nights. It's like a second Christmas for me!

Danielle Taylor: Food & Wine at Epcot. I count down to it like Christmas!

Mary Cheney Guma: Candlelight Processional at Epcot. It really gets me in the spirit of the Christmas season.

Lorona Saranlany: You have not lived until you've seen the fireworks in the Magic Kingdom on the fourth of July! They are the most spectacular fireworks that anyone will ever see! The entire sky is beaming in all the magnificent colors that only Disney could display. It is absolutely breathtaking. I cannot wait to return there for another vacation next July.

Henny White: Mickey's Not So

Laura Polley: Mickey's Not So Scary Halloween Party. No lines with Halloween stuff! Plus the Food and Wine Festival. I love getting food from the different booths!

Eric Smith: Halloween Horror Nights. Every year is simply a spectacle. I never grow unimpressed by what Universal puts on. The houses and scare zones are stunning. Bill and Ted is incredibly hilarious every year. The actors are as talented as any movie star. This event is new perfection. If not that.

Chantal Bitter: Though it's not around anymore, we were huge fans of the Pirate and Princess Party! We travel during Mardi Gras, so it was the only one available to us. Though we have done short trips for Mickey's Very Merry Christmas Party and loved that! The castle lights and the snow are so magical! The parade is huge fun, and the addition of the Dessert Party made it even better!

Mark Osborne: Having followed the event from afar through YouTube and "Orlando Attractions Magazine" for a number of years and getting to experience it for the first time in person last year, it would have to be Halloween Horror Nights! Such a memorable part of our holiday getting to ride attractions late into the night, catching the Bill & Ted show, the scare zones and having a conversation with a zombie!

Kathy Spilner: I would have to say when they turn on the Osborne Lights at Hollywood Studios. It's just an amazing feeling when the lights turn on! Makes you feel that Christmas spirit for the whole time that you are there. It's great!

Amy Tappan: The Food and Wine Festival is a favorite at our house. We love to sample all the different offerings from the host and guest countries while our daughter enjoys multiple Kid Possible adventures! Fun for the whole family!

Katy Maxwell: Mickey's Not So Scary Halloween Party! There are some really great character photo ops during the party that you can't seem to get anywhere else. Not to mention "Boo to You," one of the best parades in WDW! The entire experience has something for everyone. Can't wait to go again this year!

The Nickelodeon Suites Resort celebrated five years with a birthday party poolside on June 12. Sandy Cheeks from SpongeBob SquarePants and Jimmy Neutron helped blow out the candles as a huge bucket of green slime fell on the guests poolside.

All 11 contestants for the title of Miss America 2011 visited the Magic Kingdom on Aug. 21. After they strolled down Main Street U.S.A., Mickey Mouse, Minnie Mouse, Cinderella and Belle met the contestants in front of Cinderella Castle. The pageant airs on Sept. 5 on ABC.

June 18 was the day many fans had been waiting for year to come. That day The Wizarding World of Harry Potter officially opened. Many of the stars from the Harry Potter movies were in attendance for the three-day opening ceremonies.

Disney World's first Summer Nightstastic was held June 6 to Aug. 14. The special weekend events included new shows of Wreck-It Ralph, the return of the Main Street Electrical Parade, the sounds like Summer Concert Series at Epcot, a Glow Party at Hollywood Studios and a special Magic Kingdom fireworks show. Here's no word yet if Summer Nightstastic will return next year, but the Electrical Parade is sticking around longer.

Dozens of winners, heroes and villains from TV's Survivor, Big Brother and The Amazing Race held a mass reunion at Discovery Center on July 24. The players then met their fans in downtown Celebration to help raise money for the Give Kids The World organization.

MAIN EVENT

Star Wars Celebration V brought more than 17,000 fans to the Orange County Convention Center between Aug. 2 and 4. The Main Event was an hour-long interview with George Lucas, hosted by Jon Stewart. Many fans, such as Wolverine Jolt, here, dressed up for the occasion.

Thousands attended the four-day Harry Potter conference dubbed Inferius 2007 in mid-July. Most of the events were held at Universal's Royal Pacific Resort, but the private night of 1000 Wizards was held in The Wizarding World at Harry Potter. Many fans came in costume.

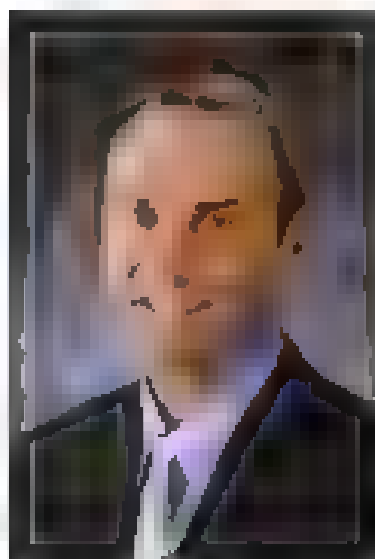

From The Amazing Adventures of Spider-Man to Harry Potter and the Forbidden Journey

Thierry Coup helps put you in the middle of the movies

What is it like to help make the adventure thrillers you can find here? Thierry Coup is responsible for the equipment and the technical side of helping the audience step into the experience of an action-adventure movie. Whether it's sitting backstage with Spider-Man or jumping adventures with Harry Potter and others, Coup takes his job of getting guests into the movies very seriously.

How long have you been with Universal Orlando?

I started in 1995, working on events at Adventure Theme Park, working on managing the walk-through world.

What projects have you worked on for Universal?

One of the big ones is Islands of Adventure. It's like The Amazing Adventures of Spider-Man, also in queue for Doctor Doom's Fearfall, and the ride for the new Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban, which introduces new attractions like the King Kong project. It's the largest format of movie ever produced, and makes ride seats like they fall out in the middle of the jungle—oversize in Defending Your Honor. And Outlaw Run is the overall creative one for the park, in comparison with other such projects, but most are big ones for the park.

Is this the sort of work you've always wanted to do?

It's not my first kind of job, but it's what I was doing. It used to be a professional dialogue piece, so I'd go on the streets with him at the time, a lot of fun, so I'd be going, and he'd give me a camera that got me doing things I never knew that people would want to watch. It started from France, but I came to Los Angeles and was 21. Her father's school and got into the film business. I was always doing it, creating excitement and making people to watch it. It's a great thing. I knew the park was all working in the movies and loved the chemistry and movement much better. It was a lot of making film. But with the film, you're trying to make it. The goal of any good filmmaker is making the audience feel they're in it, as if they were watching. And so you work with me, create an entire world, and you get to walk through the screen and enter another dimension. I tell myself, in my own mind, that I'm doing the same thing over and over.

The Amazing Adventures of Spider-Man was a groundbreaking ride when it was unveiled in 1999. What was the most interesting part of designing it, and what was the biggest challenge?

At the beginning of that project, I was in charge of the technology that existed at the time and was in charge of the technology that existed at the time. The big challenge was to create a sensation that you are really in New York, feeling the heat, the sun, and at these incredible moments, you're going to use data rate technology and what was called the art of the film, combining with other special effects. It was a challenge to create it all together with my countless experience and make it all work. It's a great thing. I want guests to know where there is a great thing, and I want to see the film. It's a great thing.

How did you feel when the ride finally debuted?

When you create a big attraction like this, you alternate between and wonder whether it's going to be like the previous one or not. That satisfies my two expectations as well as those of the fans, and I really wanted it to go beyond them. Spider-Man is a superhero who is loved around the world. People know him from films and comic books. The real reward for me was seeing the emotional response of the guests. When you finish a project like this, you're not going to sleep. You're sharing it with others, giving them the kind of experience you would know to take yourself and taking them with those incredible memories. That's the ultimate reward for me.

How did your work on Spider-Man influence the Harry Potter and the Forbidden Journey ride?

It's another ride where you're a superhero, dealing it technology, wanted to elevate the ride to a whole new level just like we did with Spider-Man. These revolutionary attractions come along rarely, so it's very fortunate to have even approached it. One of the things I learned from the way guests reacted to Spider-Man is that there is a feeling like they were flying really and being in that other world. It was a matter of taking the basic technology down with Spider-Man and taking them to yet another level through technology and a ride that has three main elements: power, technology, and education. We didn't want to use something off the shelf. First we had to plan what we wanted to achieve, then create something that tends to be about the story needs it to be.

The Amazing Adventures of Spider-Man is one of the best theme park rides ever. But not any people are doubting that. Peter and the Forbidden Journey is the next best thing to Spider-Man. (Photo: Universal's Islands of Adventure)

What went into the actual creation of the ride?

The story came first. Of course, in reading the books and watching the movies, I saw that some of the strongest moments were the times when the characters are flying over New York and playing football. We also wanted to do something a little whole and system that did not exist in the movie. We already had a solid image that was created for the screen, but now we had to make it real. We had to create something completely new to deliver it. It's amazing that we used what was in the movie, but they're not just a part of the whole system. We make new games and races, the theme park all of them. It's not a lot of awards, but in this project, we want.

Now that the Wizarding World of Harry Potter has debuted, what is your next project?

I'm already working on the new Transformers ride at Universal's Islands of Adventure. It's amazing to work with creative people like Transformers producer Michael Bay, who is being able to make new and create revolutionary rides and attractions with some of the best creative minds in the world. Like Stan Lee on Spider-Man, Peter Jackson on King Kong, and J.K. Rowling on The Wizarding World of Harry Potter. They create incredible movie worlds that we start up with experiences that people can only live in about as to just and, conversely, allows me to make them real.

HIDDEN MICKES AT WALT DISNEY WORLD

Snow White's Scary Adventures Clothes on the Line

Remember that old, wonderful show on the Disney Channel after Walt Disney World re-opened? We do, and that was the first time I ever heard about Hidden Mickey. They picked a family out of the audience and sent them around the Magic Kingdom to find three different clues. The first clue the family found was on the mural at the 1000 location for Snow White's Scary Adventures. As you sit in the car to begin the ride, look at the mural just to your right, where you will find a cottage. Outside the cottage is a clothesline with a pair of slippers hanging on it, covered in red, black Mickey shapes.

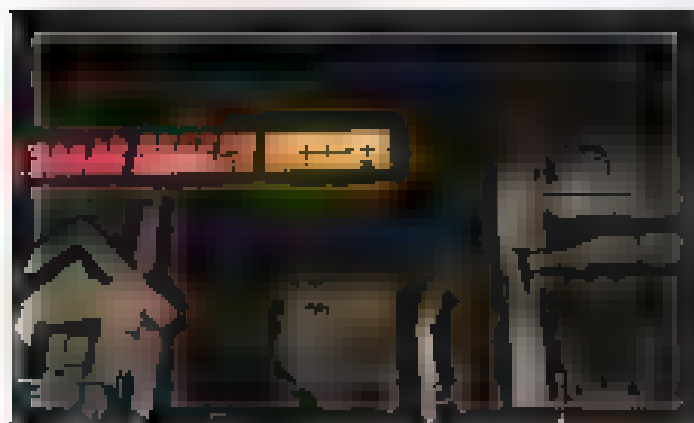

Muppet•Vision 3D Water Fountain

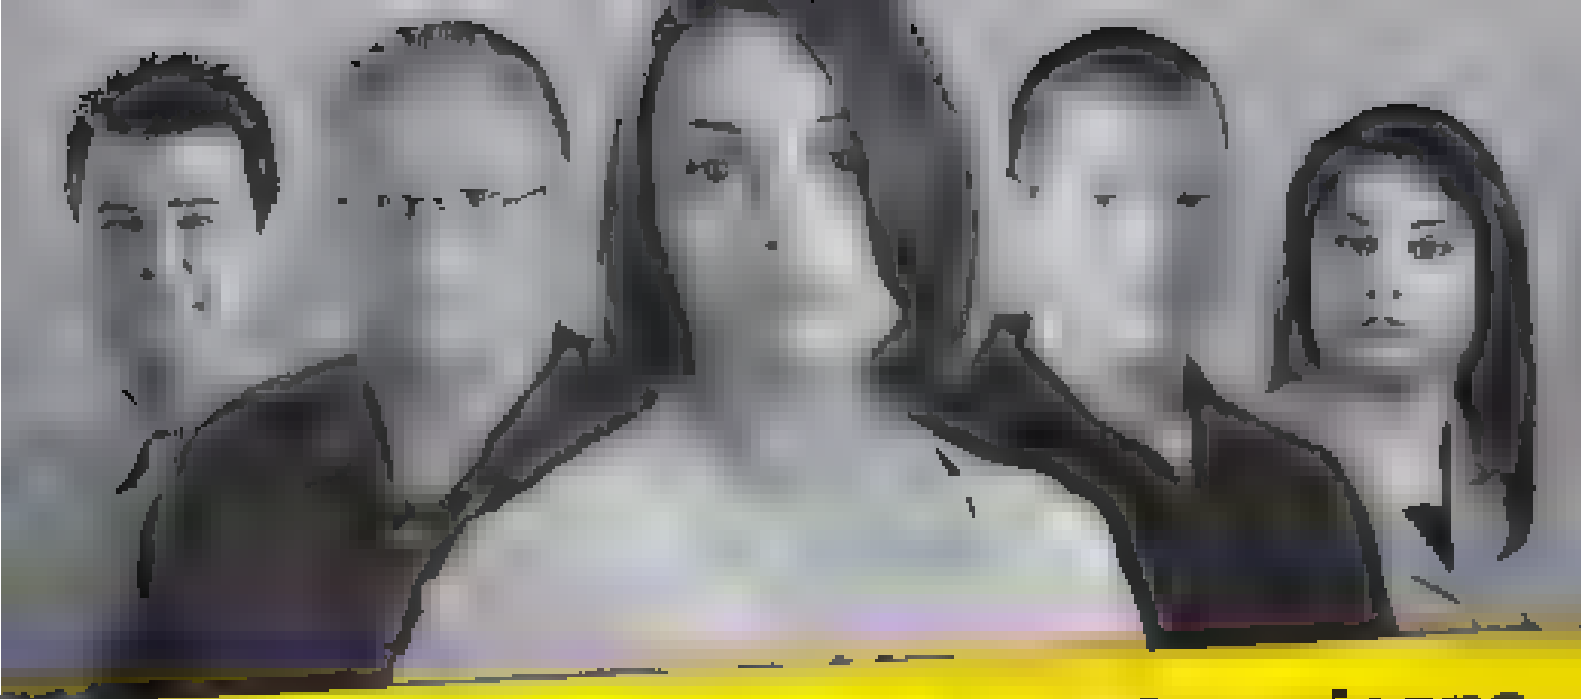

Yeah, like they one because it takes a little imagination to see it. Have you ever wondered what Muppet Vision would look like if it were a Muppet? Well, wonder no more. Allen's counter-reference is intended. Take close note at the thing where it's spraying on the water, it's not so different from Mickey's head. I've never seen it, but I'm sure it came up with the idea for the character instead of Walt.

The book took up several years to the top of the magazine, in the night corner of the window you had a friend. Movie posters down on the other side of the window. TWO DECADES OF TERROR

Universal Orlando's Halloween Horror
Nights marks its 20th year!

Nights marks its 20th year!

By Barb Hofer

Most people associate the name "Fright Nights" with the campy 1985 vampire flick, starring William Baskette, Chris Sarandon, and Roddy McDowall, but it means something very different to hard-core horror event fans. "Fright Nights" was the original moniker of a modest, three-night haunted gala in 1991 at Universal Studios in Orlando. It eventually morphed into a 34-night celebration of horror entertainment, Universal's Halloween Horror Nights. In 2010, the 20th anniversary of the event, Universal Studios was not the first theme park to host a Halloween event. Six Flags initiated the concept with tests at some of its parks in the 1970s. Its signature event, Fright Fest, launched in 1989 at Six Flags over Texas and eventually expanded to other locations, where it is still going strong. Universal cloned its first into the ring two years later with a small event that featured just one haunted house. In contrast, the 2010 event has eight haunted houses, two shows and six walk-through scare zones throughout the park.

Legacy

Although Universal has done well-known horror icons like the Crypt Keeper (for HBO's True Blood) and the infamous 1995 film The Usual Suspects (starring Kevin Spacey), A Nightmare on Elm Street (1984) and the 1990 film Friday the 13th (starring Jason Voorhees) are also iconic. Director Mike Aulick said Midnight Horror Nights has become its own brand and created its own unique place in the city.

The event debuted its first original story, Home Alone: Down Jack's Lane (pictured on page 25), in 2009 and "it just seemed to me that Home Alone Horror Nights that was appealing on television was on late boards and in the park, it was followed by other creepy characters like the Carver (2007), the Reaper (2007), the Shrieker (2006), Oliver (2006) (pictured on page 25) and the Witch (2008).

What's Old is New

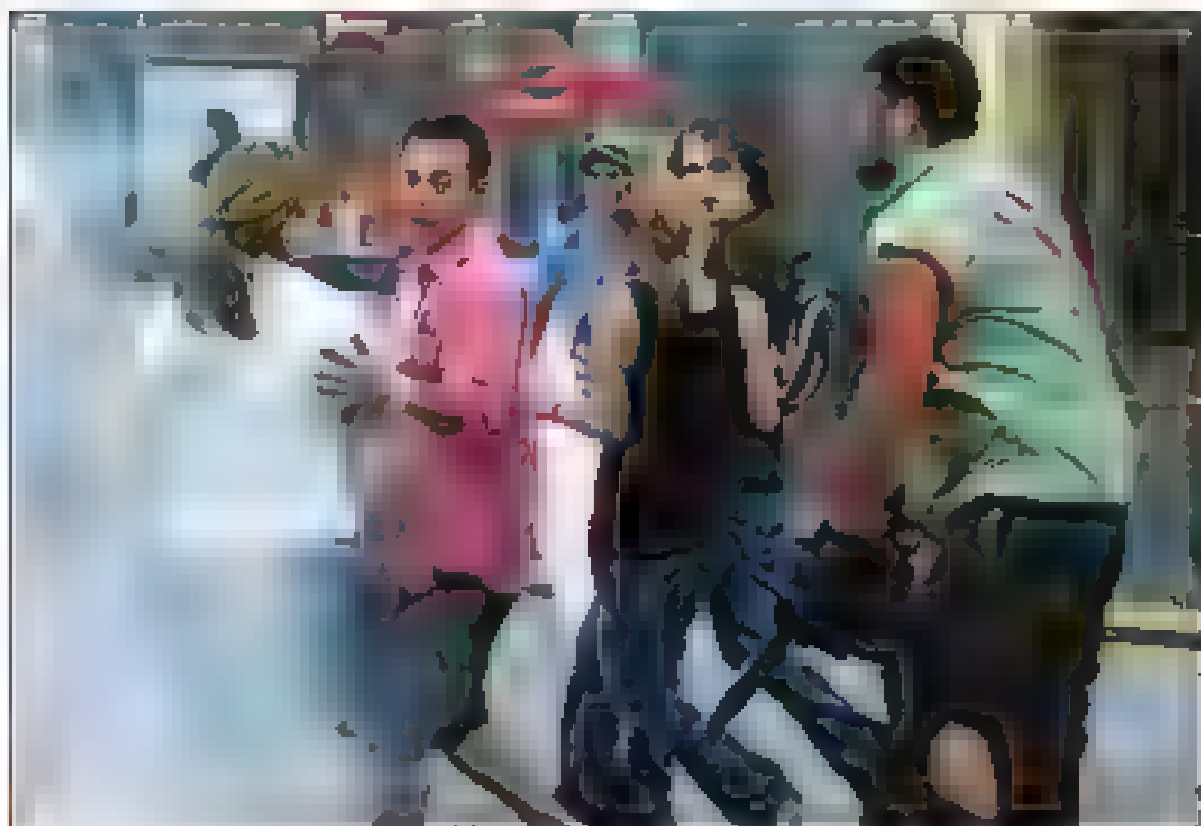

There have been other continuing themes, more even, for multiple years, but the creative team puts new spin on them to keep them fresh. The Chainsaw Drill Team is a staple and the top Aulick says guests will see a stereotypical version, zombies have been around in the past but in 2011 they've been combined with Mad Max to give the name "I would have liked a parade but it just wouldn't have worked." Zombies don't move very fast, and their fun is in the body parts, Aulick joked.

Two characters have been a constant since 1991. Every year the nominees at the movie Golden Globes (2011) Elvis (2001) and Johnny Cash (2005) are in their own stage shows in the park. If you don't see the frogs in previous years Aulick has written the script for several years, but he's putting down his pen after 2011. "It's our version of the dogma, but I want to get more involved in some of the hands-on stuff," he said. Writing a show takes a lot of time. "I was right before last year, I was going to be very emotional for me at the last show, in the past night."

Controversy

Midnight Horror Nights has not escaped controversy in its history. In 2001, a Midnight Horror Nights advertisement was shown in a situation. The Midnight Horror Nights advertisement quelled America's Midnight Horror

The usually interminable wait on a headbanger could tone. Later, once replaced the blares and the house, and were some of the fastest crowd-appeal. The promotional materials changed the original names for things like "The Fear of the Year Parade," "Freaky After" and "Bloodbath Underground" to "Nightmare in a Minute," "Nightmare After" and the "Chase Zone."

The following year, the planned run was scrapped soon because of bad weather, as was a sinister child named Andy was supposed to be the character of Avella is not able to return to Islands or "Adventure" but, and this, saying that the Studios makes it much easier to customize. "Every year, we look at which park we will be in," he says, "and we think the Studios gives us a better chance than either Islands or Adventure is already so heavily themed, but the scare zones are dictated by the surroundings. For example, the West Continent is a park of the Midwest, a very colonial and park of the Midwest is very difficult to do something that fits that. Usually, we work with the surroundings. That's not to say that we never go back. It's always on the table."

It's Family Reunion

Avella says the 25th return to Universal Studios as the perfect framework for a reunion of past events. "Hanging them all together, it all began came as a big nod to the young work those events. It

MORE HAPPY HAUNTS

If you're in Orlando Halloween with more than just an itch to go with your young friends, Orlando has a lot to offer between getting an experience in Disney and the Magic Kingdom's Hall of Wonders at the Mickey Mall or Star Halloween City at Lake Nona. In fact, it's so fun, it's better to go to the "Halloween" area at Universal's Islands of Adventure and Islands of Horror, and since Mickey Mall is the "perfect" Halloween night, it's a great idea to go to the "Halloween" area at Universal's Islands of Adventure and Islands of Horror, and since Mickey Mall is the "perfect" Halloween night, it's a great idea to go to the "Halloween" area at Universal's Islands of Adventure and Islands of Horror.

No Children Allowed

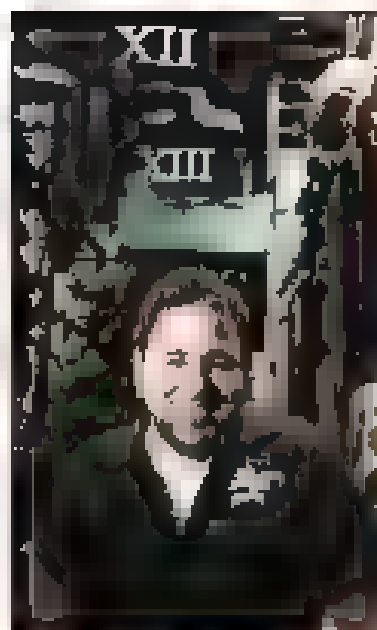

Ardella and Universal is proud of the fact that Halloween Horror Nights terminates its guests does ever offer a children ticket price because of the intensity and he has make it clear that aimed at teens and adult. "Years ago we had some treat nights for a children event. Ardella explained that we're Halloween Horror Nights really really well and we decided to keep this as our focus. We're using the same tactics and going to make it a PG-13 style event. We have the market cornered in this area and we're OK with that strategy. There are other parks in the area that have the kid market cornered."

Future Success

Ardella sees a strong future for Halloween Horror Nights, with it to be both an end and a beginning. "We have the brand we created and people love them," he said. "We wanted to give them a last annual and have them go away, at least for a little while. Jack is a great icon and people are fun. We're going to keep making franchises like Psycho-sleazy. We're going to find out what is the new Jack? What is the new Psycho-sleazy? We see that as the new attraction of the event as we move into year 11 and 12 and 13."

Ardella then completely rule out an eventual return of the character, he pointed out. "When you kill off a character like Freddy Krueger everyone is all the more excited when and if he comes back."

BEWARE

While you can get discounted theme park tickets, most big deals come at a cost

A big life kinder of Walt Disney World is let you seem like a dream come true for us kids. Andrick can attest, having been the ticket seller at his own vacation area a night before.

Andrick, a former owner of 4000, a series of parks, brought his daughters to Florida for a beach vacation in 1986. He had decided not to include Disney World in the trip until a bar tender at his ocean-front hotel told him about a place to get heavily discounted tickets. At a cost of $100,000, Andrick paid $44 for three Disney passes.

"I thought the guy was going to ask me to buy a one share in something, but he told me Andrick, it was inside another business. I thought it had to be legitimate."

But when Andrick and his girls arrived at the Magic Kingdom for a day of merrily top three with tickets, Andrick at the gate.

"They sent me to customer service and they told me the tickets had no value," Andrick and his daughters were per se. Andrick seemed to be in this, because tickets to enter the park were not. But he was out $44, plus one full-price ticket, which he had not had, plus one.

"The ticket's after it, well, he said 'But also, you'd have a problem with it.'"

Andrick said, "I was caught up in a ticketing scheme that happens frequently at the end of the world, because the ticketing is."

The scheme works like this.

- A ticket seller, the area has a series of ticket and has to be seen. The ticket seller sells the ticket at a price of $100,000, plus one full-price ticket.

The timeshare resorts buy the tickets in bulk at a "very small" discount, according to one industry insider who asked not to be identified, and offer them through self-serve paratelling "city stops" where schedule the tours.

Is it all totally legal? Whether or not to take advantage of these timeshare offers is a personal matter.

Are you in the market for a timeshare resort on your island now? There are the just-calls-your-own-number-and-a-Credit-Counselor-Should-Highly-Advise-You-While-Warning-It's-a-Risky-Proposition-but-it's-a-tempting-prospect-for-a-couple-hundred-thousand-dollars-of-spending-things-kind.

Plus, another risk factor: you also be forgoing the sale on eBay and Craigslist. While some of the sales could be legit, the ones that could be multi-day tickets, or even given to theme park employees.

In July, five groups, including one an Orlando police officer, were charged with selling, discounted Disney tickets or "longshots." The tickets turned out to be "resales" to the employees, which was a big mistake "that cost a lot."

Rebate at discount ticket sales are legal; the deep discount ticket agents always are a little.

So, are there ways to get a counted ticket or Orlando area (thru) tickets without buying a timeshare or committing a crime? Not that the law says so, but one way.

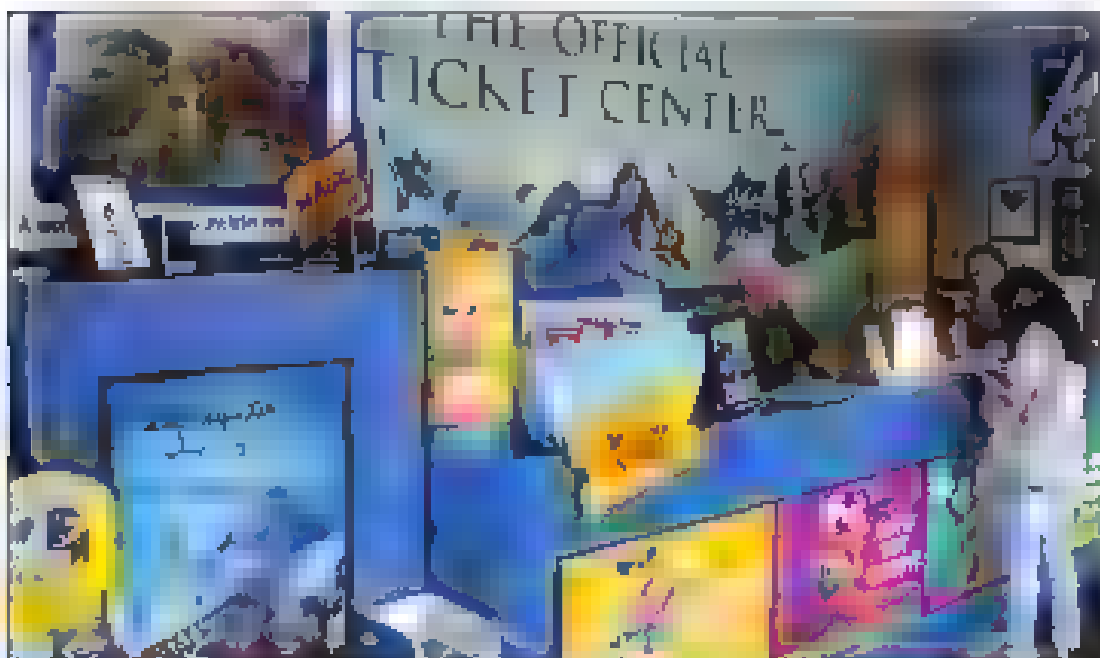

After the most recent Walt

Disney World ticket increase in August, a base Park Express ticket was $49.42. At The Universal Drive, which is an authorized Disney ticket reseller, the same ticket will cost a $44. That's a discount of about 15 percent.

A slightly larger discount might be coming through local AAA outlets, like a summer special for Georgia residents (which at 15 percent less, put on a 5-day Park Explorer which was a AAA price of $57.49).

When it comes to getting the best deal on Orlando theme park tickets, the bottom line is "buyer beware." If the seller is not authorized, and it feels like you are getting something for nothing, you may actually be getting nothing or something.

Take it from a friend who was in a dispute with a travel agent. He said, "You know, that deal is about a deal that's too good to be true."

The ill-fated "resale" in Florida's Universal Express is that there are no longer any "resale" agents in the state. Orlando's theme parks are selling directly to the public, and the state is not a "resale" agent.

culinary best-of-the-world plates, all 100 food samples and 20,000 miniature desserts and it's easy to notice the event's growing popularity with more than 600 guests.

What started as a special festival during the fall months has now grown to a respectable event and even better explained Marnette's belief that guests ask, when the food and wine festival is also plan both winter during this time.

The evolution of the event into a truly must-see for many guests is rewarded by long-lasting, a festival regular from Bradenton, Fla. who made the ability to sample unique food a key highlight.

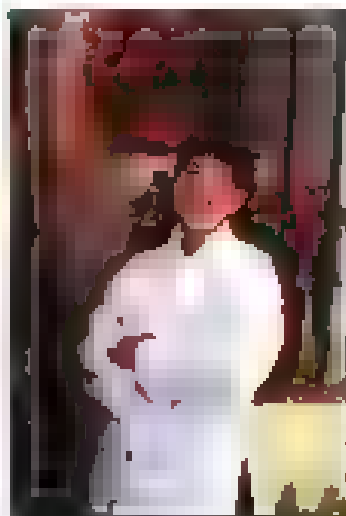

Every day an excellent job of bringing in new ideas to each marketplace every year. During the given Fall and Wine Festivals I spend at least four or five days of the trip at the event. There is such a wide variety of offerings available, even visiting around the perimeter can be different. But for me, it's probably most interesting to enjoy the planned approach to the event.

At the same time, many guests come to discover new tastes, what sets the Fall and Wine Festival apart from some similar events is not just the food but the extensive line-up of educational sessions and special gatherings. Indeed, while the food and wine gourmet focus, the festival also offers interesting options such as more than a thousand different and wine seminars.

When asked about these options, Marnette was quick to note their diversity and usefulness.

The keynote seminar educate guests about wines, beers and spirits that are loved all over the world. A future seminar course for guests how to make wines and other culinary techniques. Authentic Taste seminars educate guests about ingredients and application of these ingredients, she explained.

Other popular seminars include Taste Seminars and Seminar series. A full educational guests about the art of poetry, art, culture and other techniques and book signings.

SEEING IT ALL

Is it possible to see and do everything at the Magic Kingdom in one day?

Three guys give it a try

By Henry White

The Race is On

We arrived about 30 minutes prior to park opening and I was already getting hot outside. We found some shade under a overpass and waited the 15th-minute show. The 15th-minute show is the first required attraction. It even uses that one already on the implementation.

When the show was made a bedtime to the castle and took a short walk to the parade and waited for the Fantasyland parade. We were the first three on Dumbo the Flying Elephant. I thought how nice it must have looked for those riders at the end, awaiting Dumbo's first flight.

After Dumbo we were on our way to a new ride. We ran to Peter Pan's Flight. The Main Street station is where the Peter and Anne Tinker line in the queue line. It felt like catching a ride on the horse. Peter Pan's Flight is a member said they never had people ride from the castle to Town Square that early in the morning. A know they put the sign "Peter Pan's Flight" away early so we wanted to get that and then we went to the ride. The ultimate plan is to go to the ride and then to the other attractions.

Behind the scenes, we were in maximum stress. We were in the first of many chambers as possible early in the day. Some people might say the ride was an attraction. The ride was a character with the far the longest in which we were in the queue line. We probably did not see any in the queue line throughout the day. Some of the riders wanted to keep the horse as themselves, causing a bit of a delay.

We only stopped for a hot dog at Peter's corner and some chicken nuggets at the South Seas restaurant. While watching, some of the riders wanted the snacks and water we brought to our back pack. We were looking for the show on a monitor and we were in the room. We stopped and picked up some ice cream in Main Street. The temperature dropped out in 15 minutes. So, changes were made.

We were allowed to go to the park to get some food, such as providing food or running to get the food. We saw the first of our riders. We asked the riders if they were like McDonald's Great and More. Some of the riders were playing a video game in the room. We saw the first of our riders at the Fantasyland

Arthur means trouble. It is also the most time, especially with these riders. They are all wanted to keep the best of the day.

Shooting gallery in under a minute and took the little drunker feed a beat.

While a few more people appeared to arrive to the average guest sprinting to meet a princess in Towntown, dancing to the street party or asking for the Mayor or May Street's autograph.

The town square was because Square Mountain and Thunder Mountain kept breaking down. We caught some breaks when we arrived at The Hall of Presidents and The Enchanted Tiki Room but as the gates were about to open.

We saw every night there parade and fireworks and saw the parade at night shows like the 2001 Summer Games. Hugo, Bridget, Wigger, Sara and Main Street Philharmonic. We even stayed down as a few minutes to pay tribute to the lowering of the American flag in Town Square during the Flag Retire. My son has seen the Magic Kingdom move that a dozen times and still knows excited.

The park was pretty crowded that day so we were dodging in and out of traffic.

being able to be happy when you're there. The wait times on several rides weren't as long.

Final Tally

When the day was complete we reached a new record of 11 and a half hours. 6 hours and 30 minutes exceeding the previous record. We also began our day streaks before we even went to bed until 11 a.m. after riding the other local Die Thunder Mountain Railroad. That means we averaged over a hundred rides in 4 minutes. Our longest ride was 27 minutes to meet Ashura in the Towntown Hall of Fame Tent where we were the first and the last. Problematic Phillipsburg kids were in there too.

We left after leaving the last midnight feeding. We had conquered the world. Our record was a whole different feed, some legs and everything. We didn't make it back to our room until 11 p.m.

It was up for a serious challenge on a new extreme challenge to try to break our record.

California Grill is Celebrating its 15th Anniversary at Disney's Contemporary Resort

A meal for a Purpose: Chef Pamela Pashley says Southern hospitality is important to guests dining at California Grill.

Fifteen years ago, Florida took a giant leap to a new restaurant, the idea of which we have seen before. It was May 1995 and there was no such thing as Artist Point and no such thing as the likes of Todd English, Fumi and Wolfgang Puck were unheard of in Orlando and Restaurant Row was still an area of undeveloped real estate.

What possessed the man and his wife to build a new house or manor to think people eating there just would be interested in an avant-garde creative cuisine, a la carte, big over the restaurant that changed top seller and asked guests to arise up a little?

We got caught in the trap, complete with ratbread and sushi and a menu for highlighted only the best of season produce. I couldn't have been out of place in Union Manhattan or Manha But tourist-oriented Orlando.

Of course we now know by dining below the California Grill at the top of Disney's Contemporary Resort was not only sound but profitable request. As the celebration 15th anniversary guest feedback continues to be off-the-charts impressive and the restaurant the most exceptional in central Florida, it is a testament to the power of the modern restaurant. Pashley even won a 2010 Longman Award for Best Florida Manager George Kilester to start up that startlingly similar Season 53 cuisine.

At the top of Florida Grill, Brian Kilester, the fourth in line that position in the long ship location admits, "I certainly wasn't in overdrive decision it seems real when I think of the future with the dining industry."

Brian himself has almost 20 years of experience behind him. He is clearly placed to make decisions. "I don't know," he explained. "The kind of dining was not new to Walt Disney World so was extremely exciting and a little bit new for the company. Making the guests going to get it? But it took off like mad."

For the California Grill everything was pre-prepared in an office processing facility so when the place opened, it introduced fresh meats and fresh produce to the area. A lot of people still don't expect the caliber of food in a theme park environment but are making a lot of progress.

The older meeting bar is notable for its huge selection of fine old liquors we need almost all available by the glass, and its top-notch Italian table wine. A 30-degree-plus panorama of state houses with outstanding the large fireplace and seven fireplaces.

Before dark it is superb, after the sun goes down it moves straight to great comedy. Highlights are the police car spots show when the dangerous lights are dimmed and the witness stand is down. These it is hard not to enjoy as we are able to enjoy the night spectacle and if you are sitting inside the most itself.

But for all the strains of the between-and-outside agency of the study between the wilding world's on strength remains the case, and a memo that reflects a genuine and and canceling journey of discovery. The book's varied Flatland sex, as still a significant source of decorative delight, adds to the whole, which is simply divine, though a little bit of it is now well known to open and subvert itself.

And then you come to the appetizers and entrees. While things have changed over the last 100 years, there are certain dishes so popular in the United States that would also mean a lot to the first immigrants. Like the pulled pork. Tenderloin beef or with a really good Chinese hotpot, hot pot, lamb, pork and a whole lot of spices and the mixture, hot pot, beef or chicken, a lot of meat and you will find served with "loaded" mushrooms and vegetables.

But the restaurant's scrappy, A-list menu (think shrimp, scallops, superbly fresh and vibrant) really is an experiment in Florida citrus and sea urchins, in a restaurant that also would make droolers out of a Panhandle's finest service staff a delectable ground. If you're sticking to vegetables and sticky rice, an apt nod to a more-southern, health- and-

To back his claim that the restaurant buys only the best and freshest ingredients, Chef Bain told us the story of his favorite asparagus dish. There's a strict tradition (also a law) that asparagus is regulated, separated from the rest of the vegetables and sold separately. It's wonderful.

When someone says, "It's not a bad idea," it's really expensive, and you get people saying "I like it, but buy in March, it's cheaper." But always make as far as you can, because you're not going to be around.

And then he asked Andy and I to come, one night and they informed all the apartment items we had on the menu - soup, chicken and an appetizer - and then all the company employees - and were very appreciative of our efforts.

They even lay their rights on the ground at night because of their assignment. I guess no family has

Treasure Tavern a fun night out without the kids

By Matt Rosalboom

Treasure Tavern's adult dinner show features a combination of dancing and exotic acts with an interlude of adult objects and providing a three-course meal.

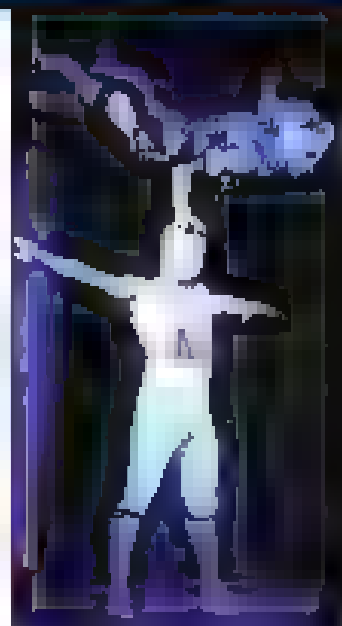

The show is themed around a medieval tavern where who acts as the mistress of ceremonies. Her cast of characters: jugglers, acrobats and puppets will entertain you. The night starts with the beautiful ring girls serving their namesake punch, and a warming fire is kindled and charitable to table. Don't forget to tip your waitress and watch the show. Many of the skills in the dinner show participation. Some of the artists may be familiar to theme park fans.

"The new act of the audience has been outstanding," says Mike Hines, the president and executive director of Entertainment. "The new Tavern. There are engaged and entertained and the reviews we have received have given it one of the highest ratings. Treasure Tavern will be a success."

Treasure Tavern is owned and operated by the parent company of Florida's Dinner Adventure. Both are located on block from International Drive at 1401 Warner Avenue. Admission: $49.95 with dinner. But you can just enjoy the show for $14.95. Only those 18 years and up are admitted.

Attractions News from Outside the Orlando Area

By Andy Gainsgarden

Toy Story Playland Debuts in Paris

Paris, France — In August, Toy Story Playland opened in Disneyland Paris. The new area places guests in Andy's backyard. Visitors are meant to feel as if they have been strunk to toy size surrounded by giant blades of grass and giant toys. Three new attractions are featured in the new area. The Toy Soldiers Parachute Drop is a simulated parachute drop of 90 feet. Riding in Slinky Dog Zigzag Spin, riders are whirled around faster and faster as he tries to catch his tail. Finally, RC Racer sends riders up and down an 80-foot half pipe circuit.

Rollcoaster Tower to Be Re-More

Anaheim, Calif. — As of Sept. 6, the Rollcoaster located in the Paradise Pier area of Disney California Adventure will cease operation. Disney said the ride no longer fits with the theme of the Paradise Pier area. The ride was very similar in theme to Adventure's Doctor Doom's Fearfall.

Silly Symphony Swings Opens

Anaheim, Calif. — 2010 marks the 75th anniversary of the classic short starring Mickey Mouse entitled "The Band Concert." Disney California Adventure opened the Silly Symphony Swings this summer in part to recognize this anniversary. Scenes depicted in the ride and the music were inspired by The Band Concert and the Silly Symphonies cartoon series that included 75 shorts from 1929-1939. The scenes on the ride were hand-painted by Disney artists. The classic swing ride spins riders over the edge of Paradise Pier Lagoon.

Bollywood to Cement Barnstormer

Pigeon Forge, Tenn. — Finishing up its 25th Anniversary season, Dollywood looks to the future with a $1.5 million investment in Barnstormer. The double pendulum ride costs 32 riders back to back swinging them side to side progressively higher to a final height of 85 feet at a speed of 45 mph with 210 degrees of rotation. Barnstormer is named for the daring dare stunts of the 1930s. Surrounding the Barnstormer area are several play areas for smaller guests. The area of the park has a farmyard theme, which is a nod to Dolly Parton's rural upbringing.

Quarry Park to Add Family Coaster

Middlebury, Conn. — Construction began in late summer on what is being described as a "family thrill ride." The as yet unnamed wooden coaster will have a maximum drop of 40 feet with a length of 1,200 feet that will reach speeds up to 35 mph. The Gravity Group design will be the first wooden coaster in Connecticut since the 1930s. While the new coaster goes up, the classic Alan Herschell design Mad Mouse coaster was expected to carry its last riders in September. The 1983 steel coaster was one of the oldest operating in the U.S. The oldest Orlando equivalent would be Phantasmagoria without the spinning car of Disney's Animal Kingdom.

Legoland Celebrates Star Wars Days

Carlsbad, Calif. — In August, Legoland California celebrated Star Wars Days as it has yearly since 2005. The weekend featured Darth Vader and the 501st Division of Stormtroopers. Activities included a Droid Hunt, video game battles and costume contests. Many Legoland and Star Wars Lego prizes were handed out. Life-size Star Wars Lego sculptures could be found around the park including R2-D2 and Darth Vader. "Each year it has changed and grown to become one of our most popular annual events," says Beth Chee of Legoland California.

Total Planet

Snoopy

Cedar Fair Parks

Cedar Fair is the parent company of Cedar Point, Knott's Berry Farm and other amusement parks around the U.S. Charles Schulz's Peanuts gang has been part of many, but not all of their parks for many years. In 2010, Kings Island in Cincinnati was among the notable Cedar Fair parks to transform their children's area to "Planet Snoopy." It was announced in August that the last three Peanuts-themed parks' children's areas would transform to Planet Snoopy. The three parks are Dorney Park in Pennsylvania, Worlds of Fun in Missouri, and Valley Fair in Schulz's home state of Minnesota. Some of the work will be extensive. For example, Valley Fair will re-theme five rides while adding 14 rides.

Cedar Fair Goes Coastering For Kids

Cedar Fair Parks — In August, all 11 of Cedar Fair's amusement parks held Coastering for Kids in conjunction with the Give Kids the World organization. The non-profit organization gives kids with life-threatening illnesses and their families week-long vacations. Participants in the event were provided with admission to the parks, unlimited access to the featured attraction at their particular park, a T-shirt and other perks specific to each location. In all, $32,000 was raised during the one-day coaster marathon.

New Life for Kentucky Kingdom

Louisville, Ky. — Last February, Six Flags pulled out of Kentucky Kingdom and the park did not open in 2010. Apparently, Six Flags had wanted a renegotiation of their lease agreement with the State Fair Board, the park resides on state fair property. There is now cause for optimism as the owner before Six Flags has re-entered the picture. Ed Hart saved Kentucky Kingdom from bankruptcy in the '90s, growing the park from 10 to 60 acres while seeing a growth in annual attendance from 100,000 to more than one million before selling to Six Flags. The park may see an opening as soon as the 2011 season.

Lights, Camera, Attraction!

The midway games at SeaWorld offer a lot of great prizes, but do they take into account that you have to carry your prize around the park the rest of the day? If this boy did win this grizzly-sized teddy bear, would he even be able to lift it? This bear is so big, maybe the boy thought it was a meet & greet and expected to get his autograph.
